Leather is a natural product and can display natural marks and characteristics such as healed scars, grain directions and creases. These are natural features not faults. Aniline leather will mark naturally and have a antiquar affect after years of use, this is part of the nature of the leather. Care for the leather is required to matain it over the years.

Velvet has a directional pile resulting in colour change when the pile is brushed the wrong way or when the light catches it. Velvet can easily mark and may appear crushed when new, to resolve this sweep with a clothes brush to refresh the pile. Over time the pile may crush due to wear, but this is a characteristic of the velvet. For extreme crashes the pile can be restored by steaming but consult a professional first.

For accidental spills or stains

Don't rub or scrub with a cloth as this could damage the fabric and remove the colour.

Don't use washing up liquid, detergents or bleach to remove stains.

Don't soak or allow fabric to become wet.

Do blot or soak up spills immediately using a dry soft colourfast cloth.

Do use specialist upholstery cleaner if needed, always follow the manufacturer抐 instructions and always test on a hidden area to check colour fastness.
